

FLEET AT ANCHOR AT SANTA BARBARA

Mayor of California City
Pays Official Visit
at Once.

Everything in Readiness for Brilliant Reception
Tomorrow.

Evans' Dispatch

"To Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, Acting Commander Atlantic Fleet, U. S. S. Flagship Connecticut:
"Am improving rapidly, and will be with you to join the fleet at Monterey."
"ROBLEY D. EVANS."

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., April 25.—The Atlantic fleet dropped anchor at 4:31 p. m., entering the channel on time, at 4 p. m. The flagship took a position almost opposite the Potter Hotel, and the other flagships of divisions to the south, the ships of each division lying out to sea in their regular formation. This places the fleet right at the door of the city proper, each flagship being only 1,500 yards from shore. No sooner had the fleet anchored than the official boat conveying Mayor Boeske and the committee shot from shore and soon was alongside the Connecticut. Admiral Thomas received the party on the quarterdeck. The formalities of reception being over, the admiral notified them that he would officially return the visit on Monday.

Hardly had the anchor of the flagship touched when Admiral Evans' message to the fleet was taken aboard, expressing good wishes and stating that his health was improving so rapidly that he would join the fleet at Monterey. Admiral Thomas, after expressing his own satisfaction, sent the message by wireless to each ship and ordered it posted.

There was no landing on any of the ships today. The first and second divisions pulled up anchor at 4:30 o'clock this morning, and were moving to join the rest of the fleet at the other posts. But this preparation of moving was not the only thing. Ships had to be cleaned and officers were alerted. The vast number of visitors on board during the days at Los Angeles made it impossible for the ships to be kept in their usual condition, and there was a scrubbing and sweeping and polishing today that would have made the most particular housewife green with jealousy. But they are clean. The brasswork and paint fairly sparkled in the afternoon sun as they moved to their anchorage.

There are extra hands to help at this time for the next few days, for in the joyousness of their reception at Los Angeles, many men overstayed their shore leave. As punishment for this they serve an extra hour for each overstayed and there are a good many extra hours being worked out.

Santa Barbara was awakened this morning by a perfect babel of noises—an unusual activity created by the placing of the finishing touches of decoration and arrangement for the festival of flowers in honor of the coming of the battleship fleet. At dawn the air resounded with the ringing of hammers and saws in structures which will be on Monday beautiful designs of floral architecture.

There are two extra rear admirals ashore here tonight besides Thomas, Emory, and Sperry. They are bluff, hearty Bowman McCalla, who did such effective work in the Cuban campaign of the navy, though retired, and Rear Admiral Jewell, who also has been retired. Rear Admiral Jewell was in the Spanish war in charge of a scout cruiser that did splendid work.

Ships Uninjured
By Long Voyage

Reports received at the Navy Department from the various captains of the battleship fleet, through Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, the acting commander-in-chief, show that the ships are in a surprisingly excellent condition, not one of the sixteen vessels needing any repairs whatever. This is regarded by authorities as most extraordinary considering the remarkably long voyage that the fleet has just ended, including target practice, which alone has always heretofore made necessary more or less repairs on nearly all of the vessels.

The ships will be loaded according to the program arranged, however. Although several days will be saved in preparing the fleet for the return journey around the world, it was stated yesterday afternoon by Acting Secretary Newberry that the date of departure from the Pacific coast will not be advanced from July 5.

Metcalfe Departs
For Grand Review

Secretary Metcalfe leaves Washington today for San Francisco for the grand review in Golden Gate harbor. The Secretary will go by way of Chicago, and expects to arrive at his home in Oakland by May 1. Mrs. Metcalfe already is in Oakland. She went West several weeks ago to be by the bedside of her son, Victor N. Metcalfe, Jr., who underwent a serious operation. Young Metcalfe is rapidly regaining his strength, according to messages received by the Secretary before he left Washington.

It was definitely decided before Secretary Metcalfe's departure that the date for the fleet's start on the journey home by way of Europe would not be advanced, in order to get it back to the Atlantic coast before March 4 next.

An invitation was received at the Navy Department today from the municipal council of Victoria and Vancouver, B. C., inviting the fleet or a division of it to visit these two cities before the departure of the vessels from friends believe their cause is gaining. Consequently, they are willing to have the discussion prolonged.

Opponents of four battleships say the Piles amendment cannot muster to exceed thirty votes. The battle opened yesterday in an unexpected way. Almost as soon as the Senate met the naval bill was placed before it for consideration. The Vice President, of course, announced the pending motion, which was the important amendment offered by Senator Piles, increasing the number of battleships to be authorized from two to four. In the usual manner the Vice President invited the ayes on the proposition. No one responded.

When he called for the noes, as many as two Senators were heard, and the Vice President declared the amendment sufficient. A moment or two later Piles, who had been out of the chamber, came in and learned the fate of his amendment. He entered an energetic protest and had no difficulty in securing a reconsideration of the matter, whereupon the debate proceeded.

Aldrich Scores Beveridge. The most prominent feature of the day's discussion was the scoring given to Senator Beveridge by Senator Aldrich, who declared that the Indiana Senator had been heard, and his own imagination for insinuating that the United States is threatened with war from any quarter or for his further statement that if this subject should be discussed in executive session fully there would be but few votes against it. Senator Aldrich also pointed out the fact that the appropriations of this session would exceed those of the last by about $120,000,000, which, taken in conjunction with the fact that a deficit of $60,000,000 will appear in the revenues for this year, makes this an inappropriately large expenditure on ships which could not be built within three years.

Senator Lodge, in announcing his intention to vote for the four battleships, declared that he did so not with any idea that any trouble was menacing the United States, but because he believed it desirable to build the ships so that this country might retain its position as the second naval power of the world. Senators Burrows and McCumby both spoke against the four battleship plan. Senator Culberson offered an amendment requiring that the eight-hour law should apply to all work authorized by the bill except in cases of emergency.

In the course of his remarks, Senator the Pacific coast. The invitation was transmitted through Ambassador Bryce, of Great Britain, and the State Department. If it is found possible, the invitation will be accepted, those ships visiting Bremerton to continue up to Victoria and Vancouver if they can find time.

The battleships Maine and Alabama will be replaced in the fleet by the new ships Wisconsin and Nebraska on May 18. They will immediately form a special service squadron and will start at once for the Atlantic coast. They will take the same route as is scheduled for the fleet, Honolulu, Guam, Manila, Singapore, and the Suez. The reasons for sending them home over this route are many, principal among them being a demonstration that these vessels can make the cruise, and that it was not because they couldn't that they were detached.

This is a matter of pride, although there are many other reasons. The Maine and Alabama are equipped with an old type of water tube boilers that consume an enormous lot of coal. Their bunker capacity is as large as that of the other vessels, but the steaming radius is materially cut down by the enormous consumption.

Another reason is that the department and the officers in charge do not want to disappoint the men on these vessels by sending them home over the route they have just traversed, and thus deprive them of the fine trip in prospect for the others.

Aldrich said he objected to the suggestion made by the Senator from Indiana, that Senators who would not vote for four battleships instead of two. He appreciated the President's interest in the navy and had no objection to his sending for Senators to discuss the matter with him.

"But it is a matter of surprise to me," he declared, "when a Senator rises on this floor and practically announces the President says this, therefore you ought to do it, and if you don't you will violate a patriotic duty."

Beveridge by this time had become excessively angry, and his face flushed and shaking his finger at Aldrich, advanced on him, shouting in impassioned tones that he wanted the Senator "to understand that I never assume to be for anyone but myself."

The Vice President rapped him to order. In concluding, Senator Aldrich pointed out that the appropriations in bills already passed or pending carried one hundred and four millions increase over those of last year, with a public building bill yet to come, with about $20,000,000 more increase in expenditures of more than one hundred and twenty millions, he said, come at a time when there is a deficit of sixty millions in the revenues. It was his opinion that unless a halt was called on expenditures it would be necessary for the committee which it is proposed to adopt to complete tariff revision, to seek for new sources of revenue.

War Improbable. "If I thought," he said, "that the honor or peace of the United States was at stake, I would be among the first to vote for as many ships as necessary. But there is no such question here. I do not say that war is impossible, but I do say that it is improbable. We should not attempt to compete with Great Britain in number of ships. The efficiency of the navy is of more importance than its size. Four battleships would mean $15,000,000 taken every year from the people of the United States by taxation to answer the fancies which exist only in the imagination of the Senator from Indiana."

In announcing that he would vote for four battleships, Senator Aldrich declared that he did so not with any idea that any trouble was menacing the United States, but because he believed it desirable to build the ships so that this country might retain its position as the second naval power of the world. Famous Old "Amen Corner" Assured of Fine New Home

NEW YORK, April 25.—Joy filled the hearts of former habitués of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, who still move and have their being in the vicinity of Madison Square, when they learned today, that the proprietors of the Hoffman House had decided to recognize, in manner most distinguished, the installation of the plush-covered seats of the famous Amen Corner.

It was known that officers of the society which bears the name of this historic "corner" had secured the seats, and that they, not desiring to remove them more remotely from Broadway and Twenty-third street than was necessary, had selected the neighboring hostelry as final repository. No additional announcements were made. The seats disappeared; the management of the Hoffman House seemed to know nothing about them. But this morning a real difference regarding the legacy, if so it may be called, the hotel authorities are preparing to accord every honor to it.

The benches are to be placed in a special apartment, just off the lobby, an apartment in which the Amen seats will be the sole furnishings. Here they will remain for all time, comparatively speaking, as a memorial of the political past. But the seats, it is believed, will bear as prominent a part in campaigns of the present and future as ever they did in years gone by. Their room will be as aside as a place where men deep in the affairs of the State and nation, as well as those who chronicle such things, will find a proper atmosphere and environment.

Barber Shop to Move. Just now the place is used as a barber shop. Entrance is at the left of the lobby, near the clerk's desk. In the new section of the hotel a modern "tonorial parlour" is being constructed. The Hoffman lobby has no such angles as the Fifth Avenue had. What there are turn the wrong way; and as the chief qualification of the "Amen" seats was that one could talk across the angle to a man opposite, obviously it would have been a mistake to have arranged them in any other way.

The seats will be put in place on May 1, according to present arrangement. It has not yet been decided whether the marble partitions will be torn down, thus throwing the room into the lobby. This will depend upon the wishes of the frequenters. As for the benches themselves they are now at a cleaning establishment, being freed of dust and microbes, political and otherwise. There was some talk of new upholstery, but this was cried down.

"Ameners" Are Pleased. News traveled through Madison Square today with marvelous swiftness. Old "Ameners" who, for the past week or so, have been lurking slyly about the dismantled hotel, watching auctioneers as they disposed of familiar furniture to a motley throng of second-hand dealers, curiosity seekers, and householders, turned from the old surroundings with an air of finality, and walked up to the next block for a look at the prospective quarters.

Here they met others of their guild. Their mood became as benevolent, as sunlit as the morning. The aspect of the barroom, with plate glass, marble fittings, cash registers, and all modern appointments, different from that of the older tavern, was overlooked, and talk was of the days to come.

"Mind you," said one of the oldest frequenters of the Fifth Avenue, "we do not forget the past any more than we forget old faces. No, we will not forget the past; rather shall we merge the past and the present, and the future will blend fittingly."

"Man is an adaptable animal, you know, and as you know, it is as though we were in a new gingerbread house. The Hoffman has a history of its own, too."

ASKS DIVORCE AGAIN FROM BESSIE FRIGANZA

CINCINNATI, April 25.—For the second time James Thomson is appealing to the courts to free him from the marital ties that bind him to Thelma O'Callahan Thomson, better known as Bessie Friganza, an actress and the sister of the well-known actress, Trilzie Friganza. They were married March 1, 1934, and have no children. Thomson filed his first suit for divorce May 19, 1932, alleging that his wife had gone on the stage and neglected her home. This was heard October 15, 1932, but no decision was ever rendered, and it was dismissed without prejudice June 14, 1935. Now Thomson has decided to try it again, and he alleges willful absence, charging that since 1931 his wife has been living with another man and left this city, adopting the profession of an actress.

Afterward they will be entertained at a luncheon at Carvel Hall.

The business sessions of the society will be held Tuesday at the New Willard, to be followed in the evening by a banquet.

MEXICAN WRECK FATAL: PILGRIMS' TRAIN STRUCK

CITY OF MEXICO, April 25.—Twenty-eight persons were killed and fifteen seriously injured at Gargantua, west of Matruca, on the main line of the Mexican railway, yesterday, in a collision between a freight and the second section of a special excursion train bearing pilgrims from the Shrine of Guadalupe. The pilgrims left Mexico City in the morning.

THAW'S FAMILY WANTS RELEASE

Counsel For Mother Denies That She Is Opposed to Move.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Col. Franklin Bartlett, counsel for Mrs. William Thaw, today authoritatively set forth the attitude of the Thaw family toward the release of Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan. Colonel Bartlett was erroneously quoted as saying that no member of the Thaw family would appear at Poughkeepsie in the habeas corpus proceedings to obtain Thaw's release. He said today:

"I do not know whether or not any of the Thaw family will appear in the proceedings at Poughkeepsie. I am not of counsel to obtain the release of Mr. Thaw, but I know that Mr. Graham has been retained in that matter. Mr. Thaw made that selection himself. Mrs. William Thaw is entirely in sympathy with the release proceedings, as she believes that Mr. Thaw is now absolutely sane."

"I wish to correct erroneous statements that attempts had been made in New York to secure other counsel in the release proceedings. I am informed that no application was made to any lawyer in New York, and consequently such an application could not have been refused."

"I also desire to say that the inferential conclusions printed that the Thaw family do not approve of the movement for Harry K. Thaw's release at this time is erroneous. The family does approve of the move. Mrs. William Thaw was originally opposed to the removal of her son to Matteawan, and she now emphatically approves the movement to effect his release on the ground that he is perfectly sane."

PHI DELTA DINNER HELD AT RALEIGH

Members of the active chapter and local alumni of the legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi gathered at the Hotel Raleigh last night, and gave themselves over to their annual night of speech-making, song, and feasting.

Henry F. Blair acted as toastmaster. Former District Attorney J. A. Birney, J. C. Sweet, Fred Dennett, Samuel Henik, and W. Wright were the speakers. They all spoke on "Fraternalism."

Many attorneys of wide reputation in the District, and several members of Congress attended the banquet.

OLDEST SEA COW DEAD: IN CAPTIVITY 19 MONTHS

NEW YORK, April 25.—After living the record period of nineteen months in captivity, the sea cow at the aquarium is dead. Worse yet, the city may never be able to get another, as Florida, in the waters of which they are found, has passed a law prohibiting their capture, on account of their rarity. Even permits to scientific institutions have been suspended.

The longest prior period of life in captivity for a sea cow was eighteen months, a record made in England. The New York specimen had the best of care, which accounts for its longer life. Every winter the tank in which it had lived was wrapped about with blankets that cold draughts might not reach the water, which was regulated with great care. Its food, largely vegetable, was sent from Florida, and was fed with the most care than is given to many children. Internal trouble, however, developed, and in a week the creature died.
